APPENDIX A : LIST OF GEOGRAPHICAL HEADINGS	99
APPENDIX B : LIST OF FIELD OF STUDY	101

INTRODUCTION

In 1914, the first thesis was written and accepted at the University of Hawai'i in partial fulfillment for an advanced degree (Master of Science). Nine years later in 1923, Robert Aitken completed the first University of Hawai'i thesis pertaining to the Pacific Islands. His was also the first Master of Arts thesis accepted at the University of Hawai'i. To date more than 450 doctoral dissertations and master's theses have been completed that contain research relating to the Pacific Islands region. The following list is a bibliography of all of those works.

Scope

All dissertations and theses completed at the University of Hawai'i through May 2008 were examined. Only works pertaining to the Pacific Islands were selected for this list. Excluded were works on Hawai'i. However, if a work covered Hawai'i and other Pacific regions, it was included.

Arrangement

The list is arranged alphabetically by author.

By using the "find" feature in Adobe PDF viewer, you will be able to retrieve theses by geographical area. A list of the geographical headings assigned to individual theses is found in Appendix A.

Although subject headings have not been assigned to the entries, the official field of study that the author specialized in does provide a limited type of subject access. For a list of "Field of Study" headings, see Appendix B.

Entry format

Each entry gives the following information:

Author.

Title.

Date. Pagination.

Degree. Field of Study

Works identified by an asterisk (*) indicates that the thesis is available from ProQuest (email: info@proquest.com or order online: http://www.proquest.com/products_umi/dissertations/disexpress.shtml)

Copies of all dissertations and theses are deposited in UH Hamilton Library's Hawaiian Collection. However, inquiries regarding interlibrary loans, microfilming (or microfiche) or photocopying should be addressed to External Services Program via e-mail: esp@hawaii.edu.
